Biographical Note: Charles F. Bodecker, dentist and dental researcher, was born Sept. 2, 1880 in New York City, the second and last child of Charles (or Carl) F.W. and Wilhelmina Himbeck Bodecker. At various times, family members spelled their surname “Bödecker” (the original spelling) and “Boedecker,” before settling on “Bodecker” by the 1920s.

Charles F.W. Bodecker, a German immigrant, was a prosperous New York City dentist who was intensely interested in dental research, and who also served on the dental faculty of the University of Buffalo in the 1890s. His important collection of rare books on the history of the profession was later donated by his sons to Columbia University’s medical library.

Charles F. Bodecker followed his father’s path, receiving his dental degree from the University of Buffalo in 1900. Since his father had returned to Berlin in 1897 due to ill health, Charles joined the family there following his graduation and established a dental practice with his father and older brother, Henry. It was highly successful and both brothers remained in Berlin after their father’s death in 1912. Charles also pursued further study at the University of Berlin, taking classes with Robert Koch, Willoughby D. Miller, and Heinrich Waldeyer and gaining wide experience in biomedical research.

He returned to New York in 1922 to start a dental practice and join the faculty of the Columbia University School of Oral and Dental Surgery. He was assistant professor of oral histology, 1923-1924; associate professor, 1924-1926; professor, 1926-1946; and professor emeritus, 1946-1965. He was a member of the New York State Dental Board, 1930-1950; associate editor of the Journal of Dental Education, 1939-1945; and editor of the New York State Dental Journal from 1948 until his death.

Bodecker’s research investigated the relation of systemic health conditions to the welfare of the teeth, particularly as they influenced dental caries. He published over 160 scientific articles and three books: Dental Histology and Embryology (1926), Elementary Histology for Dental Hygienists (1929, 2d ed., 1933), and Fundamentals of Oral Histology and Embryology including Clinical Applications (1934, 2d ed., 1940).

Bodecker married four times. His first marriage was in 1907 to a woman in Berlin he refers to in his 1923 diary only as “L. H.” She had died by 1910 when he married Josephine Steinback, a German-American who was the sister of the noted American church architect Gustave E. Steinback. She died in 1926. Bodecker married Florence Hoehn in 1928. After her death in 1957, he married Rose Marie Killian.
Charles F. Bodecker died Feb. 11, 1965 at “Happy Landing,” his retirement home near Hickory, N.C., survived by his wife and several step-children.

Organization: Organized in eight series: I. Biographical and family records; II. Correspondence and subject files; III. Educational records; IV. Dentistry; V. Photographs; VI. Diaries and other bound volumes; VII. Reprints; VIII. Oversize.

Scope and Content: The Bodecker Papers contain both personal and professional material. However, both his research interests and his time at Columbia University are not well-documented. Besides his own papers, there are some of his father, Charles (Carl) F.W. Bodecker (d. 1912).

Series I. Biographical and family records: curricula vitae; obituaries; birth, death, and marriage certificates; and other biographical material relating to Charles F. Bodecker and other members of the Bodecker family. The C. F. Bodecker autobiographical sketches, though undated, probably date to c.1940 and include much about his relationship with his father, his childhood, and his health. The C.F.W. Bodecker material includes correspondence with the University of Buffalo and with his Viennese publisher, and letters from colleagues commenting on his book, Anatomy and Pathology of the Teeth (1894).

Series II. Correspondence and subject files: Letters from family members and colleagues; documents relating to “Happy Landing,” Bodecker’s retirement home in North Carolina; letters received upon his retirement from Columbia; and correspondence with and royalty statements from his publishers.

The principal correspondents are William Lefkowitz, who had been Bodecker’s research collaborator at Columbia, and Albert Schatz, the co-discoverer with Selman Waksman of the early antibiotic streptomycin. It is not known how Bodecker and Schatz met and the correspondence here appears to be incomplete. Much of it concerns Schatz’s alternative theory of the cause of dental caries, but the two discussed a wide variety of scientific and personal topics. The Lefkowitz and Schatz correspondence includes many of Bodecker’s replies.

Series III. Educational records: Correspondence and official records relating to Bodecker’s education, mostly for his studies in Berlin and Jena, but also including a few items from his time at the University of Buffalo.

Series IV. Dentistry: Programs from professional meetings, 1920s-1930s; and correspondence relating to his tenure as editor of the New York State Dental Journal, 1944-1965.

Series V. Photographs: A few photographs of Bodecker, chiefly his Columbia University identification cards; and a few of unidentified individuals.
Series VI. Diaries & Other Bound Volumes: Diaries, address books, a log book of cruises taken in his boat, and a cash book. The early diaries, 1898-1902, are a chronicle of Bodecker’s daily activities and give a good picture of his life as a dental student in Buffalo and as a young dentist in Berlin.

The 1923-1926 diary, entitled “Personal Notes for Private Use,” (Box 4:6) is brief but highly introspective. Begun not long after he returned alone to the US after 22 years in Berlin, it records his deep anguish and depression over his lack of affection for his wife, Josephine, who had remained behind in Germany, and his growing attraction to a woman only identified as “F,” – possibly his third wife, Florence. Bodecker turned to spiritualist practices for solace: consulting mediums, attending Theosophical and spiritualist meetings, and using a Ouija board. The diary concludes with Bodecker breaking with Josephine, not long after her return to the US in 1925.

Series VII Reprints: Three volumes of Bodecker’s scientific articles, 1905-1958. They appear to be a complete record of his publications.

Series VIII Oversize material: Includes German university documents, certificates, blueprints, passports, and other documents too large to be housed in standard boxes.

LANGUAGES: English and German.

PROVENANCE: Gift of Albert Schatz, an executor of Bodecker’s estate, 2003 (acc. #2003.10.10).
